To
The President
Dadhichi Deh Dan Samiti

It is with deep gratitude and appreciation that I, on behalf of the faculty, staff, and students of Indraprastha College for Women, extend heartfelt thanks to Dadhichi Deh Dan Samiti for conducting an inspiring and enlightening sensitization programme on organ donation in our college on 14th February 2025.

Organ donation is a life-saving act with the power to transform the lives of individuals suffering from end-stage organ failure. It is one of the greatest marvels of modern medicine. In India, its relevance is immense due to the growing number of patients awaiting transplants and the limited availability of donors. The need for organ donors is far greater than the number of people who actually come forward to donate.

The session, graced by Shri Alok Kumar Ji and Dr. Sheetal Joshi Ji, was not only informative but also emotionally stirring. Drawing upon the timeless examples of Rishi Dadhichi and King Shibi, it highlighted the deep cultural and spiritual roots of selfless giving in Indian tradition.

The programme deeply resonated with our students — young, vibrant individuals who represent the future of our nation and possess the unique ability to shift social mindsets and drive meaningful change. By engaging directly with them, your organization helped plant seeds of awareness and responsibility in young minds — minds that can challenge misinformation, dismantle taboos, and become vocal ambassadors of this noble cause within their communities.

We sincerely admire the continued efforts of Dadhichi Deh Dan Samiti in inspiring such change, particularly among the youth, and in promoting an informed, compassionate dialogue on organ donation. We look forward to nurturing this association further and collaborating on future initiatives aimed at societal transformation through education and awareness.

With warm regards,
